

Find high school yearbooks

I graduated in:

1998
1988
1978

Go now »

THE BALTIMORE SUN

Home → Collections → Funding

Recommend 0

Don't cut mental health to fund education in Maryland

March 23, 2011 | By Russell K. Snyder

1 Submit 0 g+1

I am an advocate for adequate funding for public education. I understand how important it is that our schools have the resources they need. However, I am also the leader of an organization that provides high-quality services — including mental health services — to thousands of people in this region, and I am deeply disturbed that mental health funds are being used to restore cuts to education, an area that has historically remained untouched while mental health funding has taken a beating, year after year.

As the president and CEO of Volunteers of America Chesapeake, I am outraged by the actions taken last week by the Maryland General Assembly's House Appropriations Health Subcommittee to increase cuts by more than $6 million to an already slashed public mental health system.

Find high school yearbooks

I graduated in:

1998
1988
1978

Public Arrest Records

instantcheckmate.com

- 1) Enter Name and State. 2) Access Full Background Checks Instantly.

Become Ordained Online

ministerregistration.org

Ordained Minister Registration. Register Now.

Hey, Sandra Bullock Lied

lifecoolbeauty.com/sandra-s...

Her Fans Are In Shock. Her Huge Secret Is Finally Exposed!

3 Herbs that Beat Anxiety

a2xanxiety.com

Doctors Reveal 1 Weird Compound to Calm Anxiety that May Surprise You

Related Articles

Warehousing youths with mental illnesses
July 21, 2004

Arundel shores up mental health services
February 23, 2011

Outlook grim for social services
May 14, 2003

Insuring the 'Mentally III'
January 11, 1992

Mental illness and violence
March 24, 2000

Find More Stories About

Funding

Cuts

Mental Health

Each day, I see first-hand the need for the mental health and rehabilitation services our organization and others provide. Through our five mental health services programs in Maryland, Volunteers of America Chesapeake serves hundreds of mentally ill men and women in the state through area group homes, supportive permanent housing units and community-based rehabilitation programs.

It is important to note that these cuts — whether the $6.7 million proposed by the House or $4.2 million as proposed by the Senate — would be on top of the cuts already in Gov. Martin O'Malley's budget. The governor's budget includes an $11.3 million cut for community mental health (a 2.5 percent rate reduction, far greater than any other health provider group).

At a time when demand for these services is at an all-time high, and barely two months after the Tucson tragedy revealed the potential consequences when mental health issues go untreated, I believe such measures as those proposed are nothing short of irresponsible.

If these cuts are put into action, the impact on community health — and the individuals served by organizations like mine — will be devastating. The number of people served by Maryland's public mental health system has grown by 40 percent in just four years, yet funding has grown by only 17 percent. Our industry is currently facing a workforce crisis, with turnover rates around 41 percent for direct care employees. In the past three years, Volunteers of America Chesapeake alone has witnessed a 12.5 percent increase in the need for our supportive mental health services. Yet, in that same time, we have been forced to cut more than 10 percent of our mental health rehabilitation services staff.

Simply stated, Maryland deserves better. Maryland employees looking to obtain (or keep) mental health jobs deserve salaries that are not competing with unemployment benefits. Maryland residents currently dealing with mental illness deserve the services necessary to live the lives they desire. Because mental illness can attack any person at any point in his or her life, or — as the tragedy in Tucson illustrated — impact any person at any point, all Maryland residents and employees deserve a system that will protect and support them.

The challenges men, women and children suffering with mental illnesses face can often result in being unable to work, support their families or afford shelter. Our organization is a place these people can turn to, but when funding decreases, it has a direct impact on the services and support we can deliver. Cutting the budget will ultimately cut off our clients' hope.

Those who would cut these critical services to restore funding for education would do well to note that, according to Mental Hygiene Administration research, 1 in 5 children are currently living with mental illness in Maryland. Your investment in their education is wasted if they cannot receive the treatment that will permit them to learn.

Arrest Records: 2 Secrets

instantcheckmate.com

- 1) Enter Name and State. 2) Access Full Background Checks Instantly.

The proposed cuts send the message that Maryland is turning its back on mental health and walking away from an industry—and individuals —already struggling to survive. I urge the House of Delegates to think twice.

Russell K. Snyder is president and CEO of Volunteers of America Chesapeake, which provides services to more than 9,000 men, women and children in Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia. His e-mail is rsnyder@voaches.org.

Hey, Sandra Bullock Lied

lifecoolbeauty.com/sandra-secret

Her Fans Are In Shock. Her Huge Secret Is Finally Exposed!

See Also

- |  |  |
|--|--|
| 1. Mental Health Diagnosis >    | 5. Mindfulness Meditation >         |
| 2. Improve Memory Supplements > | 6. Mental Health Counseling >       |
| 3. Mental Health Services >     | 7. Deep Brain Stimulation Therapy > |
| 4. Natural Stress Relief >      | 8. Improve Mental Health >          |

Featured Articles

Molly's solo act: Newly separated, focus is on new book and raising her family

Accused Hopkins gynecologist suffocated himself with helium

Amazon to start collecting sales tax from Maryland shoppers

MORE:

19-year-old gets life sentence for killing former girlfriend

Jury finds teen guilty of killing ex-girlfriend

Slain teen remembered as joyful, 'full of love'

Rocket explodes above Wallops Malfunction ends first commercial flight from NASA center

Whom are the Browns named after? THE BROWNS' MOVE TO BALTIMORE

Ex-boyfriend is charged in teen's killing